Brandt Curtis will serve as the assistant conductor. Gerrie Glover will direct the dances. George Tanner will design the sets and Wynifred Bowers the costumes.

THE THEATRE orchestra will perform. There are still openings in the orchestra according to Dr. Earl. Interested persons should see him.

"Carmen" was first performed in 1875 by the Opera-Comique, Paris. This one of the three or four most frequently performed operas was presented by BYU in 1948.

ungarian Student Relief Fund eaches $1700 In Cash, Pledges

Funds and pledges for the ngarian Student Committee aled $1,720.41 Friday after- n.

This amount is composed of nations and pledges by cam- organizations and individu- some faculty members and vo civic organizations.

Of the total amount, $1270.41 already been turned in and $450 has been pledged. Pledges made to date are from campus groups, report Sally Arnold and Ralph Barney, co-chairmen of the HSC.

This committee has been working since early in December in an attempt to bring two Hungarian students to Brigham Young University. Many students have been driven from their homeland and are now in refugee camps in Europe.

When chosen, the students will be offered an opportunity to continue their education which they interrupted to participate in the Hungarian revolt against tyranny. The president of the Swiss-Austrian Mission has been searching for two young people who meet requirements set up by the committee.

Eagle Scout Rank Awarded to BYU Freshman

A Brigham Young University freshman was presented with the Eagle Scout rank at a special court of honor in his howetown during the Christmas holidays.

K-Lynn Paul, Fergus Falls, Minn., completed requirements for the award last summer. After approval by the Red River Valley Council Eagle Board of Review last fall the special court of honor was arranged to award the Eagle honor to Paul during his Christmas vacation.

Paul has been active in Troop 103 in Fergus Falls and in personal scouting advancement. He had also been assistant to the scoutmaster as well as a leader in summer scouting camps.

Elder Kimball Affirms Modern Revelations; Warns Procrastinators

by Clifta Bright
Daily Universe Writer

BRIGHAM Young University Stake, Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, held its quarterly conference Sunday. Elder Spencer W. Kimball of the Council of the Twelve was the main speaker and visiting authority at the two Smith Fieldhouse sessions.

With him was Stewart Eccles —of the General Welfare Board. Elder Eccles spoke of the importance of welfare work and the services it has rendered to people in need. He said that welfare has been a part of the Church since its organization and is based on the commandment, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."

He told the stake members that it was their responsibility to be self-sustaining, but in an emergency there should be no hesitation to accept help from the Church Welfare program.

ELDER Kimball's morning speech was on the principle of revelation. He answered many questions frequently asked concerning revelation during the present time.

He stated that many people think there is no revelation now, but he explained that no week passes without revelation of some kind. Revelation is constantly received by the president of the Church and his counselors.

These revelations are discussed, approved, and recorded, he added.

EACH individual is capable of receiving revelation, Elder Kimball said. When he knows that Jesus Christ was the Son of God and that this is the divine Church, then he has received his own revelation.

To obtain this, however, Elder Kimball emphasized the importance of study and prayer.

Families may receive revelation in raising their families and bishops receive it to help in guiding his ward. The spirit of revelation belongs to all these people, the church leader said.

REVELATIONS do not have to be a personal visitation of God, he stated. They may come, also, in the form of dreams and deep impressions. He mentioned the different types of revelations received by many Biblical characters.

He also said that revelations do not have to be spectacular. Some are simply explanations of doctrine, and certain prayers have been given through revelation.

Elder Kimball emphasized the importance for Latter-day Saints to believe in revelation, because the only justification for the organization of the Church was for it to come from God.

IN HIS afternoon speech, Elder Kimball used Jesus' parable of the five foolish virgins to point out the importance of doing today's work today; of not procrastinating.

He stated that the time to pay a full tithe was the time a person receives an income. If he was too long or simply does not pay it, he may lose his opportunity to pay it.

He cited other examples of procrastination, such as not working in the Church, disobeying the Word of Wisdom, not keeping the Sabbath holy, not observing the fast, and not holding family prayers.

"This is the time," he said, "to put your life in order." He cautioned the people to make no errors in doing what the Lord requires.

Direction Signs On Campus To Aid Visitors

New signs directing visitors and students have been erected on campus Thursday and Friday.

The new guides contain information on how to reach various buildings on the upper campus. Seven have been installed so far by the physical plant. The signs were constructed by the plant.

They have been needed for a long time according to Ben Lewis, director of auxiliary services. Lewis hopes that the signs will help eliminate the problem of visitors on campus who are unable to find various campus buildings due to lack of such markers.

The signs up at the present time are only temporary, Lewis said, and will be replaced by permanent markers after the completion of the men's dormitory. "Their usefulness will be judged by whether they help people get where they are going," he declared.

Located at strategic points on campus these signs will look like highway signs according to Lewis and are aimed at aiding drivers on campus.

BYU Organizations Reminded Of Feb. 18-23 Snow Carnival

Because the Junior Prom was moved up to Feb. 1 and 2, the Snow Carnival originally scheduled for that date will be postponed until Feb. 18 to 23.

Moving the Prom date up was due to not being able to secure a name band in the spring, according to Carl Mitchell, junior class president.

Kent Butterfield, Snow Carnival chairman, urges all organizations competing in this year's events to secure ideas on snow sculpturing and queen candidates.

Trophies will be awarded to winners of the skating and skiing competition in men and women's divisions, according to Butterfield.

Theme of the Carnival will be revealed at a later date stated Butterfield, but many new features will be added this year to add more spectator as well as competitive interest.

Landscape Project Chosen By Sophs

Improvement of campus landscaping was chosen as the sophomore class project during registration voting.

Georganna Ward, sophomore class project chairman, reported that 306 of the 716 voting sophomores supported the winning project.

Collection during registration rendered $491, making a total of $1,000 in class funds available for the project.

The landscaping plan is now being developed by the office of campus planning and development.

A plan to place welcoming signs at entrances to the school was runner-up in the election.

Search For Bibler Types Widens

Who is the most Snarf-like professor on campus? Who is the most Worthal-like student? Which coed is most like Louise Lush?

These questions will be answered Jan. 25 at the annual Daily Universe-sponsored Bibler Bounce.

Petitions for the Bibler personalities are now being circulated and will be available at the Daily Universe office until Jan. 21.

Forty names must be gathered for each nomination, with a 50 word or less humorous reason why the person nominated is especially suited for one of the honorary titles.

All petitions must be returned to the Daily Universe office by noon Jan. 21.

Voting for the characters will take place at the studentbody assembly Jan. 24. Final results will be announced at the Bibler Bounce the following evening.

Winners will be awarded a certificate and scroll and will perform during intermission time at the annual studentbody dance.

Pictures of persons nominated for Bibler personalities will appear in the Daily Universe beginning Monday.

Nominees for Worthal include two typically low-brow men on campus. Scott Farmer, Seattle, Wash., is opposing Gary Davis, South Gate, Calif., in the race to be voted most worthless LMOC.

Farmer, sponsored by the Committee for the Advancement of Worthless Bums, has a long campus history of sneaky tricks and underhanded attitudes. Petitioners who wish the great annual honor bestowed on Farmer listed some of his qualifications.

Wanting to know "who else would climb four flights of stairs to play 'music at midnight', could do such a 'hot' hustling job off the football field and could manage to accummulate $2,600 of indebtedness while attending school on a football scholarship?" the committee feels Farmer is especially suited for the honorary title.

Loose-jointed opposition is Davis who slouches around campus with a typical Worthal blank stare. The 41 students who signed his petition set forth the following reason as Davis' special Worthal-like virtue.

"This extrovert Californian not only looks just like Worthal, he also pulls the same miserable tricks," they write. "For instance, he sleeps in class with his eyes wide open; all the local hang-outs depend on his support, and to top it off he has at least three Louise Lushes on the string. Need we say more?"

Other petitions may be turned in at the Daily Universe office.

Last Week In Review . . .

2 Dangers SeenThreatening U. S.

by James Lee

WASHINGTON — (INS) — The news last week was filled with the drama of great men and great events.

President Eisenhower reported in his annual State of the Union message that Communism's "strongly armed imperial dictatorship" and the threat of domestic inflation are the two top perils confronting prosperous America.

Sir Anthony Eden, ailing and lonely at the pinnacle of a 33-year career in public affairs, a victim of the Middle East crisis, resigned as British Prime Minister and was succeeded by half-American Harold Macmillan.

SENATE Republican leader William F. Knowland of California announced he would not seek reelection next year. This touched off speculation that he would challenge Vice President Richard M. Nixon for the 1960 GOP Presidential nomination.

THESE WERE the highlights of the big developments:

State of the Union—Eisenhower addressed a joint session of Congress for the second time within a week.

He assured his fellow Americans that the country's economy is "strong, expanding, and fundamentally sound."

BUT he warned that inflationary pressures threaten to undermine the value of the dollar.

The President said the best way to combat the threat is "self-discipline" exercised by industry in keeping prices down and by labor in making only "reasonable" wage demands.

AS TO COMMUNISM, Pres. Eisenhower said the ever-present possibility of new Red aggression "poses a continuing threat to the free world and to our own nation's security and peace."

Ike's message—which some legislators called reassuring in its very lack of exciting disclosures—sketched in broad outline the issues and problems with which the nation must deal at home and abroad.

The President emphasized that he would spell out his legislative requests in special messages, beginning with this week's budget communication.

EDEN — Seldom in modern British history has there been a more poignant development than the Prime Minister's decision to quit the job he long had worked for, and which he has held only 21 months.

Even though the announced reason for his resignation was ill health, it seemed obvious that his step-down was caused by the ill-fated Anglo-French decision to stop the Egypt-Israel conflict with armed force.

THAT action angered the U.S., brought about the Suez Canal stoppage which created an oil crisis in Western Europe, and made Eden the target for violent criticism in Britain and elsewhere.

His declaration to young Queen Elizabeth that he could not go on as her Prime Minister brought a sad end to the often glamorous story of Sir Winston Churchill's protege, the erstwhile shining knight of diplomacy.

KNOWLAND—The announcement of 48-year-old Bill Knowland after a White House visit that he would not run for reelection to the Senate exploded with the force of a political hand grenade, if not, as the saying goes, a bombshell.

THE BROAD-CHESTED, serious-minded, widely respected Californian, one of the hardest-working Senators of recent times, played it straight. He said he just wanted to spend more time with his family.

But politicos theorized that (A) Knowland would run for Governor of California next year and (B) from that springboard would seek the GOP Presidential nomination as a rival of Nixon.

Traffic Revisited . . .

Dear Editor,

It was my experience this afternoon to be checking in the lost and found department and while there I overheard a conversation between an administrator of the traffic department and a student who evidently had violated some campus traffic ruling. The student, who very evidently was not wealthy, felt he had been done an injustice and asked what he could do to appeal his case.

The conversation that ensued served to give me the impression that the administrator was a maladjusted man who needed a job like his so he could tell people what to do.

I admit that this is a hasty generalization founded on this one experience and my impression may be a long way off base. My purpose in writing this letter is not to ridicule this man, but to point out that the traffic situation on this campus is a source of annoyance to the student and most of us feel that it can be improved.

My personal feeling in the matter is that the student who drives a car on this campus has a legitimate "gripe" coming. For one thing the University charges $5 per year for the privilege of using the campus parking lots. I'm not completely sure, but there must be over 500 students who drive cars on this campus and this would make a figure of $2,500 per year that could be used for improvement of the "fine" parking lots on this campus. (If there is a bigger mud-hole in Utah County than the lot north of the ne Family Living building, I'd lik to see it.)

Aside from the fact that it is a mud hole, I haven't noted a lot of improvement in the two years I've been here in more than a few of the places where improvement is needed.

Another thought is that mayt there wouldn't be so many st dents trying to park in the fa ulty lots if the student lots we half way decent.

Maybe the entire fault doesn lie with the traffic departmen but wherever it does lie I'd lik to suggest that the traffic si ation be given some ext thought. There are probabl more problems mixed up in th than I know of, but the traff situation on this campus ca stand a little of that "etern progression" we so often spea of. I'm not trying to step c anyone's toes, but "If the sh fits, wear it."

Show Groups Adopt Policies For Program

A meeting last quarter of representatives from all groups staging assemblies resulted in the passing of new policies for assemblies in 1957.

Competition will be divided into two divisions, social units and special events, such as the Homecoming assembly.

Because talent must be limited to members of the group participating, the division was felt necessary so social and service units would not be competing against the entire studentbody, stated Carmen Brandley, assembly chairman.

Miss Brandley also said that the division would give more people opportunity to participate instead of using the same performers for each event.

Three trophies will be presented at the end of the year instead of quarterly winners. There will be one social unit trophy, one special events trophy and a trophy for best assembly of the year between the two divisions.

Wye Magazine Searches For Material

Authors, poets, artists and photographers on the Brigham Young University campus can submit material for the winter issue of the Wye magazine until Feb. 1.

Joan Dunn, Wye editor, said the staff is looking for good short stories, non-fiction articles, poetry, critiques and other forms of literature.

She reminded students that foreign-language poetry is also being accepted.

Students should include their name, address and phone number in an envelope attached to their entry. Material can be brought to the Wye office, 147 Student Service Center, or mailed. Addressed envelopes for use have been attached to each of the posters put up in buildings on campus.

Anyone interested in being a typist or receptionist for the Wye Magazine should get in touch with Miss Dunn in the Wye Magazine office.

Swift Harry Anderson Credits Basketball Success To Hustle

by Vicki Soha
Sports Feature Writer

"Hoop success can be attributed to agressiveness," stated Harry Anderson, Cougar basketball guard, who is considered one of the best defensive men in the Skyline Conference.

Five feet 11 inches tall and 170 pounds, Anderson, a senior Physical Education major from Grantsville, is attending Brigham Young University on a basketball-track scholarship.

"The most difficult aspect of playing varsity basketball is keeping a good grade point average," he said. He has been playing varsity ball for three seasons and missing three Christmases at home also was a sacrifice. However his most memorable basketball experience was playing in Madison Square Gardens during the 1954 and 1956 Christmas holidays.

The North Carolina game in 1955 was also an outstanding experience, according to Anderson, who is one of the stabilizing forces on the Cougar team this season.

The jump shot is Anderson's favorite, and makes him a timely contributor to the Cougar's offense. His ball-hawking aggressiveness and speed make him a threat to be considered by opposing coaches and teams.

Fastest man on the casaba squad this season, Anderson is a four year track star, excelling in the 100 yard dash. During the BYU European track tour, he had picked up five firsts in the century when he was stopped by a sprained ankle.

After graduation in the spring twenty-one year old Anderson is looking forward to a mission. He then plans to ranch in Northern Utah.

Globetrotter Five Appears Monday

The world famous Harlem Globetrotters will make a one night appearance in Provo Monday night, Jan. 14, at 8:00 p.m. in the George Albert Smith Fieldhouse.

Tickets for the basketball show are now on sale in the Smith Fieldhouse. Student tickets may be purchased for a dollar. General admission is $1.50 and reserved ducats cost $1.50 and $2.50.

The Globetrotters, coached by the famed Ab Sapperstein, are probably the most famous hoop squad in the world, and certainly the most entertaining, if not the best.

It is reported that the Harlems have an eight footer playing on their club this year.

NCAA Continues Stringent Policy With Offenders

The National Collegiate Athletic Association convention has refused to relax penalties against three Pacific Coast Conference schools.

The University of Washington, UCLA and Southern California all requested the NCAA to lighten the penalties previously imposed on football.

The NCAA Council decided against rescinding the penalties and the three colleges remain on probation for varying periods.

Numerous college football coaches have gathered at the NCAA meetings and with some 12 major posts vacant several changes are anticipated.

The University of Missouri led the pack in naming its new coach. Frank Broyles, backfield coach at Georgia Tech for the past six seasons, today signed a three-year contract to replace the retiring Don Faurot.

Cats Squeak By Rams; Stampede Past Pokes

HAZARDS of a foreign court were once again demonstrated forcibly to a visibly shaken Brigham Young University basketball team as they squeeked by a home-loving band of Colorado A&M Aggies 66-61 Friday at Fort Collins.

Coach Stan Watts' ulcers received a blessed reprieve with the win, for the Cats bounded into undisputed first place in conference standings as Utah State succumbed to Wyoming 86-78.

ONCE again it was tantalyzing Tom Steinke, BYU's most consistent and prolific scorer, who spearheaded a Cat comeback with 24 points canned mostly from the outside.

A&M's band box of a gym seemed to stifle the Cougars, giving them a nerve rattling case of claustrophobia and the Aggies a comfortable 11 point lead during the first half. As the teams left the floor at the half, A&M clung happily to a 35-30 lead.

WITH Steinke, Roy Thacker, and Lynn Rowe leading the way, BYU surged from behind wtih 13 minutes remaining in the game to knot the game up, and after exchanging leads for several minutes, finally push through for the win.

With road wins as valuable as money growing trees or a Universe Subscription, this one was a big step toward a conference title for the Cats.

THACKER put on his best display of offensive and defensive might of the season racking up 15 points on six fielders and three from the foulstripe. The rangy Cat center also snagged a good share of rebounds.

Rowe hit for ten points before fouling out with 10 minutes remaining in the game. The lithe Cougar forward put BYU ahead for the first time in the game 46-45 with one of his patented jump shots from the side.

Benson hit for 10 points also and Harry Anderson squeezed in five. John Gustin accounted for two points and Russ Jones, 6-6 replacement for Rowe failed to score but gave a strong man performance on the boards.

THE COUGARS' Saturday win over Wyoming, 82-71, left Coach Watts much in the same condition as a 65-year-old confirmed bachelor: pleased at how far he has gotten, but cautious knowing he still may get knocked o

Letting their strategy of ge ting out in front and stayi there be known from the sta the Cats traded shots with t Cowboys for a few minutes, th took permanent possession the lead.

The Pokes came close a fe times. They led 2-0, and 4-2, a tied it up at 7-7, 9-9, and 11-1 but after that BYU went in fro to stay.

THE COUGARS were sho ing consistently and well duri the game, but hitting 18 out 18 from the free throw line the second period really push them over the top.

Midway in the second perio when the Cowboys closed t gap to 57-53 the Cats went in their control game, somethi Wyoming has until this seas been notorious for, and th coupled with their deadly sho ing from the charity stripe, nally broke the Pokes' backs.

HIGH MAN for BYU was fo ward John Benson, who push through 19 points, followed forward Lynn Rowe and gua Tom Steinke who garnered each. Guard Harry Anders also hit in the double figur picking up 14 points.

Phil Mulkey was high m for Wyoming with 18 points.

The Cougars, always consi ered a running ball club, h their fast break working well Laramie, and used it to offs the "stick forward" type of pl Wyoming occasionally came with.

THE TWIN wins on the Ea ern Slope put BYU in undispu ed first place in the Skyli Conference with a 3-0 record, position envied by seven oth teams in the league, and o that will be jeopardized eve weekend until the season clos

Besides the first place sp the Cats hold onto somethi that may prove to be a big fa tor in the Skyline race; t road wins, and one of the roug est "away" series in the conf ence over with.

However, Coach Watts w not be sitting around baski in last weekend's twin-killin Utah State, the one team in t conference that can boast a w over Utah, hosts the Coug Friday, which means that t coach's famed ulcer will g little rest this week.
